

Healing from the harms of dominance and taking communal accountability for the ways dominance projects calls for healing our individual and collective wounds in our existing groups, communities, webs, and networks so we can come together and build the world we want to live in with the power, humility, strength, and softness to move through fascism and into kinship.

